farm machinery are removed, except of lumber, are removed.

Farm machinery will cost more. So will such things as household furniture, radios, television sets, pianos, cases and tablecloths. Pneumatic tires and tubes for agricultural machinery and such agricultural necessities as barbed wire, binder twine, feed and feed products, all of which are now in short supply, have been removed. Thus leather is discontinued.

FROM THAT LENGTHY list the committee has decided that there will be a general cost-of-living rise all along the line. Just how big will be the increases? But the committee took consolation in the fact the prices are being held still on some basic items such as flour, basic fats, basic iron and steel products, soap, rents and eviction controls.

There was some cry of "down with Fascism" here. Said:

"We shall go forward to exterminate the Jewish-controlled government and then we'll have no financial advisor to the president."

A Communist party spokesman remarked: "We have decided not to rival the Facists as our name is so closely associated with undemocratic publicity."

France will remain, but it will be a slow process, the ambassador said. Coal, the key to French industry, and the coal which is so insistently on a large share of German coal production as a result of the war, will remain in Britain as in the pre-war period.

The Count said he is anxious to see the friendly relations between Canada and France.

CANADIANS have been most generous to France, he said. In the last year, Canada has given $100,000,000 to France, on the other hand, is a good customer of Canada, having purchased Canadian dollars amounting to $80,000,000 in the past two years in addition to the large credit buying in the Dominion.

Japs Threatening Commit Hara-Kiri

MOOSE JAW, Sept. 15.—(CP)—The 58 Japanese housed in the normal school dormitory have referred to committing hara-kiri in protest against their movement to a central hub from the northern part of the city.

Dr. L. McKillop, manager of the camp said today:

"The Japanese are threatening to commit suicide rather than leave."

On the basis of developments in the last few weeks, the following conclusions are reached:

1. The Nazis will approve the Palestine committee's unanimous recommendation to terminate as soon as possible the mandate of the League of Nations mandate under which Britain rules Palestine.

2. Despite strong Arab opposition, the Nazis will not be induced to be limited up behind the plan to partition the Holy Land.

3. The partition plan may be accepted by the Nazis with specific provisos, particularly with regard to the boundaries of the two proposed states.

The Right to Drive

Magistrate Miller commented the other day that in Edmonton cancelling drivers' licences has also greater results in curbing traffic offences than levying fines. Enforcement officers pretty generally have said that is true also in other cities.

During August nine such licences were suspended in the Edmonton police court for periods varying from two months to a whole year.

Edmonton drivers who are careless or reckless in operating their cars should infer something from this statement, and from the Magistrate's record. The quite plain suggestion is that if they are apprehended for breaking the traffic laws they cannot count on settling the matter by paying fines, but may expect to lose the right to drive their cars if the offence is flagrant.

Offending drivers in other cities have the same penalties in prospect. It is being recommended, and proclaimed, here as elsewhere, that cancellation is more effective than fining as a means of inducing respect for traffic laws.

It seems rather a pity that there is no way to cancel the "license" of a pedestrian who breaks the regulations, and of forbidding him the use of the public streets for a season. It may yet come to that if jay-walking becomes a common enough nuisance to require more serious attention.

Plenty of Dynamite

The General Assembly of the United Nations will meet in regular annual session at Tokyo, at Lake Success.

The agenda is packed with explosives.

Among these is the "veto question," the question being how to limit the exercise of the veto power so as to prevent it being misused. Competent observers have said this proposal may wreck the U.N. organization as it stands. At least the discussion is bound to provoke extreme tension, and cause clashes. It seems more likely to widen than to narrow the breach among the great powers.

The proposal to maintain a permanent border patrol in the Balkan area is another danger-filled problem which will have to be faced. Having gone so far to protect Greece from outside interference, the Assembly is committed to the creation of some lasting safeguard for that outpost of democracy.

" Liberated" Korea is still without even a shadow government, and the big powers have reached a stalemate that is after two years of post-war wrangling. The Assembly can hardly leave the situation as it stands. To do that would be to abandon Korea to chance, cause wonderment in Japan, and shake faith in Europe as to the competence of the new "league" of nations.

The Palestine problem is also on the program. Having set up a committee of investigation, now due to formally report, the Assembly cannot side-step the responsibility to take action of some kind. Presumably action based on either the majority or the minority report from this committee. A preview of these reports has been published. Neither has been hailed with complete satisfaction by the Jews, and both are declared to be a certain cause of war by the Arabs.

Whatever the Assembly does on any or all of these matters, the session is bound to be lively, livelier than any yet held. It may, according to some highly-rated commentators, end in blowing up the U.N. organization to pieces.

Reassuring Facts

Trade officials at Ottawa do not seem to be alarmed about Britain's dollar shortage, owing to the prevailing epidemic of infantile paralysis.

Montreal: Canada's first airmail service was inaugurated when a plane picked up mail from the Empress of Australia at Timmins and a flight to Moosonee, six hours and five minutes later.

Dublin: Captain Macintosh hopped off from this port today on a flight to Philadelphia.

1937: 40 Years Ago

The chain of British experimental farms across the Dominion has been completed this year with the establishment of farms at Lethbridge and Lacombe.

There are no more than 350 houses for rent in the city at present and as the rates are high many families have decided to spend the winter in Canada unless some arrangement for accommodation is made.

Ottawa: The Franco-Canadian trade treaty will be signed in Paris this week.

1917: 30 Years Ago

Ottawa: The War Times Election Act was put through third reading by application of closure.

Winnipeg: Export of coal to Canada will be limited by a license system.

Commissioner Ferry of the R.N.W.M.P. was a visitor to the city yesterday.

1927: 20 Years Ago

Edmonton schools will remain closed indefinitely, owing to the prevailing epidemic of infantile paralysis.

Montreal: Canada's first airmail service was inaugurated when a plane picked up mail from the Empress of Australia at Timmins and a flight to Moosonee, six hours and five minutes later.

1937: 10 Years Ago

Edmonton Municipal chapter, IODE, announced that a special drive in aid of the blind of Alberta would be conducted.

C.C.F. party leaders decided not to contest the Edmonton provincial by-election in which E. L. Smith, a former star, was the standard bearer for the group opposing Social Credit.

School and city health boards were continuing to give nasal sprays as protection against poliomyelitis. New cases had been reported in the city for a week.

A member of the National Boxing Association, needing to decide which of the contenders should be allowed to compete, was faced with the task of losing his heart to Tommy Farr.

These items make up the bulk of our exports to Britain. Apples, poultry meat, canned salmon will be barred under the new "austerity" embargo, while canned fruits and vegetables have not figured largely in Canadian shipments. For all these there is a good demand in the United States and other countries for as much as Canada can spare.

To whatever extent export of these banned products is shifted from Britain to the United States, that will help to narrow the balance of trade between the Dominion and that country, and therefore ease Canada's own dollar scarcity.

Argentina has summarily cut off shipments of canned meats to Britain and may stop shipments also of fresh meat and other foodstuffs. The canned meat trade ran to 50,000 tons during the first half of this year, while last year Argentina sent Britain more than half its import meat supplies. That eliminates any likelihood that Britain may want to curtail its purchases in Canada. It will need all the meat it can get.

There is nothing in all this to indicate that our export trade to Britain is in danger. The strength of that trade is that our shipments have been in the main things which Britain must have, and will need as much—perhaps more—in the future as in the past.

What Comes of it All?

The department of agriculture at Washington reports that the farmer in the United States is taking in more meat than he ever got before. In eight months past cash farm receipts are calculated at $17,400,000,000, a 21 per cent gain over the same period in 1946—which itself was a record year.

But there is the companion picture. The farmer's cost of living and doing business has also gone up. Equipment and supplies cost more. Hired help costs more. Last year his operating expenses rose 9 per cent. No estimate is made of the rise in 1947. That it went up in proportion is supposed.

In Canada the movement has been similar, though less marked. The farmer here too gets more but also has to pay more. He protests that he is no better off when the accounts are added up and the balance struck.

Town people are in the same plight. They too get more wages generally, but have to pay more. They likewise complain that income and outgo are running neck-and-neck; many of them that the outgo is rising faster than the income.

The speculation may be idle, since nobody can do anything about it. But it is not the less interesting to speculate whether people on the average, in town and country, and on both sides of the line, would not be just as well off if prices and wages had been kept pegged at the levels of 1945.

Report From London

Differences Between U. S. and British Governments

By JOHN G. WINANT

Former U.S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James was clemized in 1941 by the British government and died with his resignation through the year at its most important of American "listening posts."

During England's most critical days in her history, he acted as chief interpreter of the following:

"Land and are not subject to judicial review. The King is the head of state and in his official capacity and in the laying of the foundations are centred, while the practical working functions of government are carried on by the Cabinet and the Prime Minister."

One of the tasks of an Ambassador is to interpret correctly to his government to those officially responsible in the country to which he is assigned and to do a like work from that government to his own government.

Guide for Grooms

Hope you don't think I'm trying to muscle in on Dorothy Dix's territory, but a young reader (mainly a girl) has asked me to advise her on marriage, a condition in which he shrewdly expects to find himself. "Can you tell me how to be a man?" she asks. "I'm a good girl, and old married men smile and chuckle to themselves."

This is a question no man can hope to answer in general terms; instead, just to help the kid out, I propose to picture a few of the qualities of a good man, the good and the bad, the right and the wrong, and the correct and the incorrect qualities of his husband. Let's see, I can try one of these to get the idea.

Situation: You are invited to dinner by your boss. For obvious reasons, you decline the invitation. Your wife says she can't possibly be because (a) she needs a permanent change of clothes, and (b) she simply hasn't a thing to wear.

Incorrect solution: Go to the wardrobe and select a good-looking dress, and show your wife that she has, indeed, several dresses. Ask her why she likes to dress up. Ask her if she'd like a certain attractive wife of your acquaintance. Tell her that beauty is not in the eye of the beholder, but in the wave, but shines from within. As, for instance, in this certain attractive wife of your acquaintance. Tell her you're well aware of this dinner, where she likes it or not. And that's that. Correct solution: Give the dough and shut up.

Does this give you the idea? Well, you can't even then with some other typical scenes. Can I give you a hand across this sub-head?

Some Scenes

There are now, for our second last side.

Situation: Your wife complains that you are no longer polite to her, that you are not as good as you have, that those gentle little ways you had before you were married.

Incorrect solution: Remind your wife that she is forever talking about certain movie stars to treat them as though they were your wife. Tell her that her idea of real romance is to watch George Raft show off his muscles in front of her face. Point out that she is constantly saying she wish she'd married some rough, tough human, but when you open your mouth to speak up like a big boy she breaks into tears. Ask her to leave the family pictures she's invested to watch Humphrey Bogart treat his women rulers.

Correct solution: Be more polite. Still another frequent domestic storm involves what program to listen to on the radio. You want to listen to a ball game, your wife wants to hear a certain drama starring a Philo or some such name. Incorrect solution: Didn't you hear that the radio she does well has the radio on from early morning until night and can listen to the news all day while you are sitting in the office and surely it's not too much to ask to have something on that you want to hear.

Correct solution: Read the ball game in the newspaper.

Accomplishing an immediate purpose is of little value if the method used is destined to increase future difficulties.

Add to Happiness By Proper Conduct

Dear Dorothy Dix: Why do so many daughters-in-law hear of it that he would many husbands make their girls' engagements and without the permission and without the knowledge ever having done one single thing to offend them? Recently a young friend of mine became engaged and when someone asked her what about her fiance's family and all that, she said, "Oh, he's all right. His only relative is a sister who lives a thousand miles away, and his mother was kind enough to die years ago."

Don't you think that is one of the most cruel speeches you ever heard? A girl can make, and if the young man

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Now that I have a new baby and the market mothers are interested in the why and how of feeding them, I am sending a copy of "The Young Infant" by Ruth M. Loverton, Ph. D. and George Clark, M. D., published in the American Medical Association.

The author studied the results of the diet of meat in the diet of 18 infants six weeks and one year old, and found that the babies seem to grasp is that they are not used to meat and heart to rejoice over the fact that her prospective husband had lost his job, as he was so lacking in tenderness, in sympathy, in understanding and all the attributes that a man would need to make him a good husband.

If the silly jealous wives only realized that there was no case on earth that they could do that would quickly alienate their husbands from their wives for the rest of their families. No woman can make a greater mistake than the one of marrying a man who is not a good man.

He may give in to his wife's nagging and never go to see his mother, or even write to her, but he is not a good man.

The relationship can be made one that is filled with love and happiness. Foolish, as well as criminal, is the way he throws

the chance of added happiness away.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I read with interest your article on the newborn infant, which was so well written.

As we are at the time of birth and of when a great many other infants of the same age were given the same diet minus the meat and the results were checked.

EDMONTON BULLETIN — EDMONTON, ALBERTA, SEPT. 18, 1947 — EDMONTON JOURNAL
Map Shows Yields Of Wheat Over Prairie Provinces YIELD OF WHEAT PER ACRE
OVER THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES 1947

The picture this year of the wheat yield per acre in the prairie provinces presents a quite unusual appearance. Normally the northern areas of the three prairie provinces show higher yields than the southern areas, but this year the picture is quite the reverse, with yields in the southern areas being higher than in the northern areas. The distribution of high and low rainfall, which is the cause of the variations in yield, will no doubt be the reason why there are well over 20 bushels to the acre at some points to less than five bushels to the acre at other points.
